1. What diversity of perspective, attributes, knowledge or skills would you bring to the office that differentiates you or that the other candidates don't have? My difference is my life story. Being a black republican from the inner city of Brooklyn, NY is about as unique and different as it comes. I also have the unique perspective of having a 17 year career in the finance industry, combined with 4 years of legislative experience.

2. What are three things you want to accomplish if you are elected to this office?

1. Fully secure America's southern border and modernize our immigration systems.
2. Creating a balanced budget through a zero-based budgeting process
3. Reform and modernize the regulatory state, so American business can thrive.

3. Name one current public policy position you disagree with. Why do you disagree?

I disagree with the current regulatory environment surrounding nuclear power plants. If we want a sustainable energy source free from fossil fuel use, we should be embracing nuclear power and reduce the regulatory hurdle so it is more cost efficient.

4. What is the most important thing voters should know about you before making their decision in this race? For 10 years, I have been a consistent conservative. If voters are looking for their next Congressman to be a conservative, there is no one in this race who has my track record of being committed to the US Constitution and conservative principles.
