Republican incumbent Blaise Ingoglia and Democratic challenger Annette Taddeo are competing for Florida Chief Financial Officer in the Nov. 3, 2026, general election. Gov. Ron DeSantis appointed Ingoglia CFO to fill a vacancy in July 2025, and he is now seeking election to his first full term. The winner will serve a four-year term as one of the three elected members of the Florida Cabinet. Learn about the Executive Branch of Florida's government in my Sparker's Civics primer post.

In this post, I summarize the backgrounds and stated priorities of the two candidates seeking the position, along with their endorsements, recent news coverage, and campaign finance data, to help voters prepare to cast their ballots. I also include links where you can research each candidate further.

Blaise Ingoglia

Republican incumbent Blaise Ingoglia was born Nov. 4, 1970, in New York City. He moved to Spring Hill, FL, in 1996, where he founded a mortgage company focused on helping first-time homebuyers and, in 2001, Hartland Homes, a home-building company serving the Spring Hill market. In 2007, he founded Government Gone Wild, a public awareness effort using live seminars and YouTube videos to highlight government spending; the videos have been viewed approximately 8 million times.

Ingoglia served in the Florida House of Representatives from 2014 to 2022 and as Chair of the Republican Party of Florida from 2015 to 2019. As Chairman of the Republican Party of Florida, he led statewide efforts to elect President Donald Trump and Governor Ron DeSantis. He served in the Florida Senate from 2022 until his CFO appointment in 2025. He lives in Spring Hill with his wife Julie. (campaign website; Wikipedia; Ballotpedia)

Legal Matters

On Aug. 16, 2026, the Florida Bulldog reported that Ingoglia’s state-required Form 6 financial disclosure omits more than 100 properties, worth an estimated $10 million, held through four limited liability companies he controls: Hartland Homes, Hartland Holdings, Hartland Centre, and Hartland Plaza. Florida law requires officials to identify real estate holdings above $1,000 in value by street address or another description that lets the public locate them without further research; the report identified 55 Hernando County properties and 57 Citrus County properties tied to the companies that are not individually listed on the form. It cited a prior case involving homebuilder Carlos Beruff that drew a $1,500 ethics fine for a similar disclosure gap. Ingoglia spokeswoman Sydney Booker said the form was filled out accurately and in accordance with the law, and that it had been reviewed by an attorney before filing. (Florida Bulldog)

Annette Taddeo

Democratic challenger Annette Taddeo was born April 7, 1967, in Barrancabermeja, Colombia, to an Italian-American father, a U.S. World War II and Korean War fighter pilot, and a Colombian mother. After her father was kidnapped by FARC guerrillas, she moved to the United States at age 17, initially settling in Huntsville, AL. She graduated from the University of North Alabama with a degree in commercial Spanish and, shortly after, moved to Miami. In 1995, Taddeo founded LanguageSpeak, a language services company recognized as one of Florida's Top 100 Small Businesses and one of the nation's Top 500 Small Businesses. (Lobby Tools)

Taddeo entered politics in 2008 when she ran unsuccessfully against Republican Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen for Florida's 18th Congressional District. She remained active in local Democratic politics and ran as the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor alongside Charlie Crist in 2014. In September 2017, she won a special election for Florida Senate District 40, becoming the first Latina Democrat elected to the Florida Senate; she was re-elected in 2018. After announcing a gubernatorial run in 2021, she shifted to Florida's 27th Congressional District race, losing to incumbent Republican Rep. María Elvira Salazar in 2022. She ran for Miami-Dade County Clerk and Comptroller in 2024 but lost. She announced her candidacy for CFO on June 8-9, 2026. Taddeo is married to Eric Goldstein, a Miami psychologist, and they have a daughter, Sofia. (Wikipedia; WUSE)

Platform

Taddeo's campaign website describes Florida families as "being robbed in plain sight" by insurance companies and calls for "an independent watchdog — not a political appointee who answers to the governor." She has stated that as CFO, she will "hold the corrupt accountable — starting on day one." (campaign website; Florida Politics)

Campaign Finances

Political committees may raise and spend money without limit to support or oppose candidates, but Florida law caps direct transfers from a committee to a candidate's own campaign account at $3,000 per election, with the primary and general treated as separate elections. For more on how to read these figures and what this information does and does not tell us, see the Sparker's Civics primer, Understanding Campaign Finance Data.

Ingoglia's Contributions

Blaise Ingoglia raised a total of $2.4 million (monetary contributions plus in-kind support) from 1,051 individual and institutional donors. Ninety-four percent of his monetary contributions came from Florida donors. Of that, $281,450 in contributions came from political committees giving directly to his campaign account. Nearly all of his in-kind support, 97 percent of the $1,052,807 total, came from the Republican Party of Florida.

Separately, Friends of Blaise Ingoglia and Government Gone Wild PAC, political committees he chairs, have raised $10.3 million combined since their formation, of which $5.3 million remains available.

Taddeo's Contributions

Annette Taddeo's campaign took in $163,359 in total: monetary contributions, in-kind support, and a personal loan.
